North Side Social.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Blinn entertained the North Side Social last evening at their residence, on College avenue Twenty-Fifth Ward. This society of triends has had an organized existence for a number of years for the purpose of social enjoyment, but owing to afflictions be-falling a number of its members, last evening was the first time for near two years that it has been called together, and again they indulged in laughter and smiles and exchanged congratulations, that, although the ways of life has its shadows, it too has its rays of sunshine.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Beck and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Munro, old members of the Social, are contemplating removing from North Side, and will thereby sever their connection as members. And this royal en-tertainment was in their bonor, to enable all to witness the breaking of the golden an to witness the breaking of the golden cord and say the sad word good-by. And although their places will be filled by two estimable couples, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Domhof and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Davidson, yet they will ever be missed in hours of joy and times of sorrow. May they, in their wanderings drift to suppose the same of the wand times of sorrow. May they, in their wanderings, drift to sunny climes.

At 10 o'clock the spacious dining-room was thrown open, and midst the perfume of sowers the company was regaled with luncheon rare, attended in person by the good host and hostess.

"THE DANICHEFFS" AT PIKE'S.

This very interesting play was presented at Pike's Opera-house last night to an audience that seemed to thoroughly appreciate the piece and the acting. "The Danicheffs" is not entirely new to the people of this city, but it is a play that will live longer and bear seeing much more fre-quently than most modern pieces. It was ast night excellently rendered. Mr. Louis James and Mrs. Wolcott were especially fine in the parts of "Ossip" and "Princess Lydia." But it is not justice to discriminate where every part is so well rendered, as is the case with this company. FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.

ST. NICHOLAS.

The February St. Nicholas is replete with entertaining juvenile literature and elegant pictorial attractions. Among the contents are a charming narrative, "A Faithful Friend," founded on facts relating to the noble acts of a sagacious dog in a family on the New Jersey coast. "Edith's Burgiar" is another very interesting and truthful story, by Mrs. Frances Burnett, "Saved from Siberia" gives an agreeable account of Russian life and manners. The two serials, "Among the Lakes," by William O. Steddard, and "Jack and Jill," by Louise M. Alcott, are continued. There are several descriptive pieces: "A Knotty Subject," telling about some of the many currous knots used on shipboard; "Some Wonderful Automata," seen by the author in India. "So w Sports another very interesting and truthful story, seen by the author in India; "Sn w Sports for Boys and Girls," by Samuel Von Brunt, showing them how to make snow statues; "Hearing Without Esrs," a description of the recent and famous invention, the audi-phone. "Mary Elizabeth" is the title of a phone. Mary Engageth is the title of a pleasing and affecting tale by Elizabeth Stuart duelps. "How to Entertain a Guest" gives some very useful information and is well told, for boys and girls desiring to know something of etiquetts. Other pieces are: "Out at Sea," Prairie Squir-rels," "The Raven Uncle;" and Alfred Tennyson (Peet Laureate) contributes two "Child Songs." Among the many elegant illustrations the frontispiece, "The Princes in the Tower," is pre-eminent as an exquisite specimen of the engraver's

THE ATLANTIC.

An interesting account of "Puritan Boston," with the peculiar manners and customs in vogue there a century and a half ago, drawn from the manuscript journal of Samuel Sewell an old Colonial Judge of those early days, is a leading feature of the Feb ruary Atlantic. An ably written essay on "Pessimism," by Goldwin Smith, is another valuable contribution. Richard Grant White has an entertaining paper on "Antonius Stradivarius and his Violin," with ome curious information concerning the history of this popular instrument. The paper on "Wordsworth," by C. P. Cranch, is a timely criticism on the works of this neglected poet, conspicuous for its fine thought and good judgment. The other contents are: An account of the life and labors of the late Justice Curtis; "The Undiscovered Country," Chapters 3d and 4th, by W. D. Howells; "The Strong Government Idea;" "The South Devil," a story of the Florida assayledge, by Constance For the Florida everglades, by Constance Fen-nimore Wookon; "Dickens' Letters;"
"James' Hawthorne;" poems by Longfellow, Boyesen, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, and the agreeable short articles in "The Contributors' Club."

The February Scribner, the midwinter number, is filled with even more than the usual elegant pictorial and literary attractions. It opens with an article entitled "A Wheel Around the Hui," by Charles E. Pratt, giving an account of the tour made last summer of several bicycle clubs of Boston and vicinity, with spirited and characteristic illustrations. Eugene Schuyler contributes the first part of a history of the life and times of Peter the Great; also finely illustrated with portraits of the famous "Isar" and his parents, and with graphic descriptions of the manners and customs of the Russian people in his days. An "Authoritative Account of the Edison Electric Light" is given in a paper by Francis R. Upton, with drawings and diagram showing the details of the principle involved, and the parts of the instrumentused. Another illustrated article is antly descriptive of the various kinds of "New England Fences" so familiar to every rural native, but curious objects to denizens of the town. The fourth paper on "Success with Small Fruits," describes scenes and incidents on a Southern straw berry farm in the picking season, and as also appropriately illustrated. Mrs. Bur-net, of "Lass o' Lowrie's" fame, commences a new serial story relating to Southern life and character, entitled "Louisiana." Other articles are a biographical sketch of the great English statesman, John Bright, with portrait; "Present Phases of Sunday-school Work," by Ed-
